What to expect at a TTC event

Technical and Teaching Committee (TTC) training days are an extension of Sugano Shihan's direct teachings, and a special effort should be made to attend the entire weekend. These training days:

- Have a structure and a theme and are presented as a course, not just as separate classes.
- Provide intensive training, having at least 3 hours per day training, over 2 or more days.
- Are taught by the most senior instructors in Aiki Kai Australia, all being ranked 6th dan or above.
- Focus on the technical direction set by Sugano Shihan, including the grading syllabus.
- Provide the opportunity for senior instructors, particularly members of the Dan grading committee, to observe and get to know students from across Australia.
- Are part of the prerequisites for dan gradings.

Students are required to hold a current Aiki Kai membership card (or proof of payment) to train. Please bring your membership book(s) for the TTC stamp, as this forms part of dan grade attendance records. Note that your book(s) may be returned via a dojo representative and not on the day.

Grading information

Students intending to grade should have discussed and agreed this with their recommending instructor prior to the grading. They are expected to attend at least one training session on the day of their grading, and preferably, the entire TTC event.

On their grading forms, students are required to obtain sign off from each dojo where they trained, as well as from their recommending instructor. Training records for days after January 1, 2023 will only be accepted from the TRAKR Attendance app.
Completed grading forms, or an intention to grade email must be sent to aikidovictoria@gmail.com before the grading. Failure to do so may result in the student being unable to grade.

Gradings are a formal event. Under current circumstances, only grading candidates, ukes and the grading panel will be permitted on the mat. Photography and filming of gradings is not permitted.
